

I am 83 years old and I am concerned about my country and what it is becoming. I am concerned about the Right and the Left as they twist the meaning of words for political gain. I am concerned about the so called "experts" that are changing our ethics and morals for what is deemed to be the "right thing to do"...

An example of that is abortion...

Abortion has nothing to do with women's rights, nothing to do with men's right, it only has to do with the rights of the living. Our Constitution guarantees Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. What part of "life" don't the Liberals understand.

I am not a doctor, a lawyer or a politician but I have lived enough of life to understand what life is.

The women's egg is hers, the man's sperm is his... but when, in any form, in any way, in any place, they manage to unite the two together it no longer belongs to them it is a living thing. You put the ingredients together for a pie, and put it in the oven... it is a pie... does it belong to the oven... Is it a part of the oven... The answer is NO... And when the egg meets the sperm does it belong to the carrier, the answer is NO... The woman evolved as the carrier for the human race, some other species do it differently. It is not a mole, it is not a wart or even a bruise or a finger nail, it is a new life creation and our Constitution guarantees it the same chance for life as any other human being.

So, in my estimation, all of these folks, both men and women who are shouting from the roof tops about "it is a woman's body" need to reconsider and go the way of the legal bodies who long ago decided that if a pregnant woman is involved in a fatal accident there are two lives lost. And any person who causes her death can be charged with two capital crimes.

I may not have used the best English here and there are probably a few misspelled words but think about it, life is a precious thing and we should be finding ways to save lives not new ways to destroy life...
