

I believe, in this country, every human being has the right and privilege to be whatever their ability and intelligence allows them to be.

BUT...

There is an unwritten but well understood rule that you as an individual cannot do anything to another individual that would cause them harm or impede their ability to live their life. You can't yell fire in a crowded theater unless there is an actual fire. All of our laws are made with that "do unto others what you would do unto yourself" idea in mind.

Sure, a physical male can play in women's sports, if they have the ability and intelligence to do so. But, because of the difference in the physical makeup, they can cause harm to the female competitor and impede their ability to live their life.

The women train and compete to become accomplished in their particular sport. They compete with the hope that they may get a college scholarship or a professional career. In fair competition they have a chance to excel. Allowing a physical male to compete against them, is unfair, dangerous and honestly un American. It will forever change the future of women's sports.

The solution would be to form a "Gender Bender" league or federation where they can fairly compete with individuals of the same gender.
